

Alan T. McCollom

In addition to general intellectual property counseling, Alan is adept at providing infringement and validity studies and opinions; analysis of potential patent infringement; and preparation and prosecution of applications directed to critical technology, as well as applications being reissued and reexamined.

His extensive litigation record includes US Patent and Trademark Office inter partes proceedings and infringement cases. He has represented Korean and Japanese clients on US patent matters and represented US clients in obtaining patents and trademarks in various Asian and European countries, and in Australia.

Dispute Resolution

Alan is a mediator and arbitrator. He is a member of neutral panels for the CPR International Institute for Conflict Prevention & Resolution, American Arbitration Association, and National Arbitration Forum. He has served as a special master to determine patent infringement damages, as a sole arbitrator, and on panels with amounts in dispute ranging from tens-of-thousands to millions of dollars.

Practice Areas

Alan's practice encompasses electronics and computer technology, including semiconductor processes, digital compression, cryptography, analog ICs, DRAM circuits and web site analytics. Formerly an engineer for General Electric Medical Systems Division, he also has broad experience with electronic medical equipment.

Clients

Among Alan's clients is Samsung, the largest maker of DRAM in the world, which sits near the top of the Global 500 and has been among the world's top 10 in US patents for four consecutive years. He also works with IGT, the world leader in the design, development, manufacture, distribution and sales of computerized gaming machines and systems.

Recent Results

Alan prepared and prosecuted four patents for Acres Gaming (now IGT) that were litigated, resulting in a judgment that they were infringed.

Beyond MJM

Alan enjoys reading, hiking and cooking.
